

Brillopak – Company Overview

Brillopak Ltd. is an independent British design and manufacturing company based in Rochester, Kent and we are the only company of our type in the UK. We specialise in the design, fabrication, assembly and installation of automation systems for the handling and manipulation of pallets, bags, boxes and other objects in the packing halls of major companies throughout the world. We support a wide range of customers in a number of sectors, including the food manufacture, pharmaceutical, chemical and packaging industries.

Keeping abreast of the latest technologies and focusing on the needs of today's factories, we provide machines which are easy to use, easy to maintain and which do the job that is demanded of them, efficiently and effectively. All of our engineering is carried out in-house with manufacture and assembly taking place at the same premises. Control panels are also designed, built and programmed in-house to ensure that the Brillopak team retain all the necessary knowledge and skill required to support your equipment effectively.

The versatility of our experienced team means that we can design and build tailor-made solutions to your individual specifications, to meet a particular requirement, as well as mechanisms which are suitable for use in high speed or otherwise complex environments. We also offer a complete maintenance back up including off-the-shelf spares, servicing and rebuild facilities.

Brillopak specialises in standard as well as bespoke machinery and we can also modify and refurbish existing equipment. In addition, we are happy to undertake complete line installations, removals and modifications. Our key product areas include:

- Pallet handling systems
- Conveyor/palletising systems (conventional and robotic)
- Mechanical handling systems
- Custom equipment design
- Automated programmable logic controlled/servo equipment
- Linear positioning systems
- Manipulator and pick/place units
- X-Y tables

Brillopak sells direct to customers as well as through a traditional OEM client base. We are also always interested in talking to new sales agents and distributors.
